About the Internet Archive

The Internet Archive is a 501(c)(3) non-profit library. Founded in 1996, our mission is to provide Universal Access to All Knowledge. We collect published works and make them available in digital formats. We are building a public library that can serve anyone in the world with access to the Internet.

We began in 1996 by archiving the Internet itself, a medium that was just beginning to grow in use. Like newspapers, the content published on the web was ephemeral - but unlike newspapers, no one was saving it. Today we have 20+ years of web history accessible through the Wayback Machine and we work with 450+ library and other partners through our Archive-It program to identify important web pages.

As our web archive grew, so did our commitment to providing digital versions of other published works. Today our archive contains:

- 279 billion web pages
- 11 million books and texts
- 4 million audio recordings (including 160,000 live concerts)
- 3 million videos (including 1 million Television News programs)
- 1 million images
- 100,000 software programs

Anyone with a free account can upload media to the Internet Archive. We work with thousands of partners globally to save copies of their work into special collections.

Building refuge for federal climate & environmental data

DataRefuge helps to build refuge for federal data and supports climate and environmental research and advocacy. We are committed to fact-based arguments. DataRefuge preserves the facts we need at a time of ongoing climate change.

This site is one part of the project. The vast majority of the government information gathered through this project is available from the Internet Archive through the End of Term project. ## Dépôt légal des sites web

- ▶ Types de documents
- ▶ Modalités pour les éditeurs, producteurs et hébergeurs
- ▶ Cas des livres numériques (e-books)
- ▶ Attribution d'un ISSN ou d'un ISBN
  - ISSN

Types de documents

Le dépôt légal concerne tous les types de publications diffusées sur l'internet : sites institutionnels ou personnels, revues d'accès gratuit ou payant, blogs, sites commerciaux, plateformes de vidéos ou de livres numériques...

Les contenus édités ou les éditeurs doivent avoir un lien avec le territoire français. Il s'agit avant tout des sites web enregistrés en .fr ainsi que ceux des départements et territoires d'outre-mer. D'autres sites web en .com, .org, .net, etc. édités par des personnes physiques ou morales domiciliées en France font également partie du périmètre. Enfin, les publications produites sur le territoire national peuvent être concernées même si elles sont diffusées par une société étrangère.

Afin d'identifier ces sites web, la BnF a passé des accords avec des organismes en charge de la gestion de noms de domaines, comme l'Association française pour le nommage internet en coopération (AFNIC), la société de conseil en systèmes et logiciels informatiques (OVH) et l'Office des postes et télécommunications de Nouvelle-Calédonie (OPT-NC). Chaque année, plusieurs millions de sites sont ainsi capturés, jusqu'à une profondeur déterminée à l'avance (de l'ordre de quelques milliers de fichiers par site).

Web Archiving at the Library of Congress

In 2000, the Library of Congress established a pilot project to collect and preserve websites. A multidisciplinary team of Library staff studied methods to evaluate, select, collect, catalog, provide access to, and preserve these materials for future generations of researchers.

Since then, the Library has developed thematic web and event-based archives on such topics as the United States National Elections, the Iraq War, and the events of September 11. Designated staff in Library Services and the Law Library select content for the archives.

A Web Archiving Team, currently located in the Library's Technology Policy office, supports the goal of managing and sustaining at-risk digital content. The team is charged with building a Library-wide understanding and technical infrastructure for capturing web content. The team, in collaboration with a variety of Library staff, and national and international partners, is identifying policy issues, establishing best practices and building tools to collect and preserve web content.

Our Story

Our Story

Our business began in 2010 by serving those most in need of medicinal cannabis: homebound and invalid patients. Our center has evolved to meet the needs of all medical cannabis patients, and expanded in April 2015 to serve all adults over the age of 21.

The Groundswell team is not new to the Bluebird District. In fact, we've played an integral part in the neighborhood's growth and improvements over the last 10 years. Our vision is to create a neighborhood resource that will educate and create awareness about responsible cannabis use and its medicinal benefits.

Our Mission

- To help every person who comes through our doors feel truly cared for, valued and respected.
- To protect cannabis patients by providing a safe and affordable alternative to the dangerous circumstances of the illegal drug market.
- To create an extraordinary environment of honesty and friendliness with a patient-centric approach.
- To improve and protect the safety, tranquility, and cleanliness of our immediate neighborhood.

Area-wide transition to open access is possible

A new study calculates a redeployment of funds in Open Access

April 27, 2015

The Max Planck Digital Library has put forward a study on the transformation of the subscription-driven system for scientific publications to an Open Access model. For the first time, quantitative parameters are presented showing that the liberation of scholarly literature is possible at no extra costs.

According to market analyses, annual turnovers of academic publishers amount to approximately EUR 7.6 billion. This money comes predominantly from publicly funded scientific libraries as they purchase subscriptions or licenses in order to provide access to scientific journals for their customers. Since more than a decade the Open Access movement, in which the Max Planck Society plays a major role, has been demanding free and immediate access to the results of academic research on the internet.

To preserve the Internet, libraries should. . .

- Identify locally-important websites to preserve in depth
- Work collaboratively
- Expend a bit less money and effort on “traditional” resources
